Gen. Von Schleicher Now Trying To Form Cabinet In Germany

Man Who Was Power Behind Von Papen Government Called on To-day by President von Hindenburg

BENNETT TO SAIL SUNDAY

Premier Plans to Leave New York Then For Brief Visit in London

Canadian Press and Associated Press

Berlin, Dec. 2.—President von Hindenburg to-day asked General Kurt von Schleicher, "mystery man" in German politics and at present the Defence Minister to form a presidial cabinet for the republic.

Gen. von Schleicher had been regarded as the almost certain choice for the chancellorship ever since Chancellor Franz von Papen's Junker government stepped out after last month's election.

The general was summoned to the President's study this morning, and after a conference he walked out with a man to form a cabinet.

If successful he was commissioned to occupy the chancellorship himself instead of the defence ministry he held during Von Papen's tenure of office.

In the Von Papen cabinet, however, Gen. von Schleicher was looked on as the power behind the government in his "key ministry."

HITLER'S REQUEST

To-day's invitation to Von Schleicher came after the sending of a letter yesterday from President Hindenburg by Adolf Hitler in which the Nazi chieftain renewed his demand that he be made Chancellor.

Von Papen and Von Schleicher conferred yesterday. It was understood they told each other about the results of their political scouting expeditions during the last few days.

Both of them subsequently entered President Von Hindenburg's study and made a report.

Pound Sterling Has Loss On Exchange

Closes at New York To-day at $3.20 5-8; Canadian Dollar at 85 Cents

Change rates at noon to-day as quoted by the Canadian Press were:

Pound Sterling in Montreal $3.76 1/2

U.S. dollar in Montreal $1.17 1/2

AT NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 2.—The pound sterling gave way on the foreign exchange market here to-day, closing 3½ cents lower at $3.20 5-8 for cables, fractionally higher than its noon quotation.

The Canadian dollar also closed lower, ending the day 3½ cent weaker at 85 cents (United States premium of 17½ per cent).

IN LONDON

London, Dec. 2.—Publication of the new British war debt note only slightly affected the price of sterling on the sterling-U.S. dollar exchange market here to-day. At first the rate improved to $3.24 1/4, but eased to $3.23 1/4 about noon.

The stock exchange reacted but slightly, remaining steady and quiet. gilt-edged securities hardened between 1½ and 1¾ of a point, while Transatlantic issues adjusted themselves to overnight Wall Street news.

INFLUENZA IN ONTARIO

North Bay, Ont., Dec. 2.—(Canadian Press) An epidemic of influenza is sweeping North Bay and surrounding parts of the city has been visited by it according to Dr. J. E. Rancey, health officer. Attendance at the schools has been reduced. Railroad, office and store staffs have been affected by it. The influenza is of a mild form, patients recovering after a two or three days' illness.

OAK BAY LIBERALS MEETING TO-NIGHT

The annual meeting of the Oak Bay Liberal Association will be held this evening in the United Church Hall at the corner of Cranmer and Hampshire Roads. New officers will be elected and reports received. All Oak Bay Liberals are urged to attend.

BORAH'S DEBT OPINION

Washington, Dec. 2 (Associated Press)—Chairman William Borah of the United States Senate foreign relations committee to-day said the war debts owed the United States were only one cause of the world's economic troubles and it was "unfair to ask the American taxpayers to contribute their part for the removal of these causes and leave behind causes which will make their contributions wholly ineffective."

SOVIET RUSSIA PARADES MILITARY STRENGTH

The above picture gives an impression of the centre of Moscow during one of Soviet Russia's great celebrations. One million persons—soldiers, sailors, workers and peasants—paraded through Red Square in the country's capital recently in a pageant marking the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the Soviet regime. Above is a glimpse of thousands of troops massed in the square in front of the Lenin tomb, from where Josef Stalin and other leaders of the government reviewed the procession.

Vancouver, Dec. 2.—Royal Canadian Mounted and city police today raided Communist headquarters on East Hastings Street, where they seized a large quantity of literature and documents. Among the articles found was an army tunic with red buttons in place of the usual brass ones.

Police also raided offices of an unemployment organization on West Cordova Street.

CITY ENGINEER DIES SUDDENLY

Seizure Proves Fatal to F. M. Preston, Who Lived Here Nineteen Years

Mayor and City Hall Staff Pay Tribute to His Faithful Service

Widespread regret was expressed at the City Hall over the death today of Frank Matthew Preston, city engineer and waterworks commissioner.

Mr. Preston died at the Jubilee Hospital at 1 o'clock this morning from paralysis brought on by a hemorrhage of the brain early yesterday. He had been in hospital less than twenty-four hours.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the B.C. Funeral Chapel.

Mr. Preston never regained consciousness from the time he entered the hospital at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. He had been confined during the week of severe headaches.

Dr. Hermann Robertson was called to attend him Wednesday evening. He ordered his removal to hospital, but efforts to save his life failed. His wife and daughter waited at the hospital during the day, but he failed steadily.

The flag over the City Hall flew at half mast to-day, and in every office the deepest sympathy was expressed.

LOTS MORE RAIN; NO SIGN OF SNOW

No Fair Weather Except Scattered Showers Indicated for Victoria.

John Public, slightly miffed after a November in which Jupiter Pluvius showed more activity than he had done during the same month in the last two decades, leaned over the counter to-day and put in an order for a spell of dry weather in which to do his early Christmas shopping.

Promises of brief spells at scattered intervals was the only response accompanied with the assurance there was an abundance of rain on stock which could be had for the asking.

The weatherman explained a large amount had been brought in the tail of a big storm raging in the north Pacific off the coast of Haida Gwaii and northern British Columbia. It had somewhat demoralized the market and washed away fair weather. He brought down his sales chart to show how unsettled conditions were, but although good sunshine was not included in shipments due for Victoria, neither was intense cold nor snow, he said.

In other words, a continuation of the present rainy season here was forecast by F. Napier Denison of the Gornales Hill Observation as he reported the weather map of British Columbia, a slight rise in the barometer index, but a spell of fair weather, but no evidence of a pronounced change could be found.

FUNNY CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S THREE GREAT ROMANCES

Charlie Chaplin, the supreme screen comic, has had three great romances during his life. He is now in the throes of his third, after the two first ended in divorce courts.

The story of the comedian's heart affairs and the temperamental reason for failure as a husband has been written by Dan Thomas, Fully Illustrated, it will be published as a feature of the Magazine Section of the Victoria Daily Times to-morrow.

Other features of the Saturday Magazine Section will include:

Frank Buck, the explorer for wild animals, tells how an aged Moor was happy to see his son swallowed by a great python because it was a belief that this great snake of the tropics was a god and any human swallowed by one went to heaven.

How jewels at the recent opening of the Metropolitan helped to brighten the fading glory of the historic opera house's golden horseshoe.

London Star Says British Cabinet Ready to Act If U.S. Refuses Postponement

Most of Newspapers of Britain Speak With Moderation of Debt Situation

Canadian Press

London, Dec. 2.—A statement printed to-day in The London Evening Star that the cabinet is ready to act without delay in forging a formidable weapon of tariffs if the United States does not agree to the British proposals regarding the war debt, attracted immediate attention this evening of United States trade officials here. The Star is a Liberal opposition paper.

They turned up an Anglo-American commercial treaty negotiated in 1815, but found nothing in the old pact indicating it could be abrogated immediately. That treaty was renewed in 1828 to continue indefinitely, with a most-favored-nation clause which could be renounced on twelve months notice.

IMPORTANT QUOTAS

It was said, however, that the most-favored-nation arrangement could be circumvented by application of an import quota system or by restriction against definite articles of United States exports.

Early's tariff action had no authoritative support.

The Commons met briefly this forenoon but adjourned for the usual week-end and there was little opportunity for parliamentary action. This will probably be repeated Monday, after the members have had time to study the British case as set out in the new note to Washington.

YOUNG HALF-BREED ADMITS SLAYING

John Edward Earl, alias John Edward McGee, a nineteen-year-old half-breed, was arrested at Lytton yesterday by provincial police and confessed to the murder of Lee Bing, aged Chinese merchant, last Friday.

Early's confession recites that he shot Bing five times with a .38-calibre revolver about 8:30 p.m. on November 26, dragged the body to an opening in the floor and drove it down into a sub-cell, where it was recovered the following Monday by police.

The murderer took $10 in silver from Bing's pockets, but left over $100 untouched and did not disturb anything in the store. This led to the belief that Bing was a long war victim.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Speaker John N. Garner, United States Vice-President-Elect, predicted to newspapermen to-day that despite the latest British war debt note, "Congress is not going to change the situation."

LONDON'S ATTITUDE

London, Dec. 2.—The main subject of conjecture here to-day on the debt discussion with Washington was the attitude the United States would take. Official quarters remained silent as well as the embassies of Great Britain. The final decision will be left to the United States insist on the December 15 payment, though the tone of the note indicates Britain is ready to pay the instalment of $95,500,000.

Charles S. Ramsay, Her To-day, Swam Mile Every Month to Get His Mail

Carried It Aloft With Sticks Outward and Propelled Sealed Tin on Return

Swimming with the mails through shark-infested waters has for years been the diverting occupation of Charles S. Ramsay, trader of Niua Fou, Tongan group, who was a passenger aboard the S. Niagara to-day from the South Seas. Mr. Ramsay will not return to Niua Fou but will probably settle in California.

He is a powerful swimmer and speaks the language of the Tongas like a native. His story reads like a Stevenson adventure tale. For a good many years now the steamer Tofua has been carrying mails and supplies each month between Auckland and Angaha, the only village on the island of Niua Fou, where Mr. Ramsay acted as manager for the trading firm of Morris and Henderson of Suva.

Of Angaha there abound coral reefs and the mail steamer is forced to anchor half a mile offshore. The only means of getting the mails ashore is to swim for them, and this the trader and some of his trusty natives have been doing for a period of years.

Because a Saanich woman enjoying a mother's pension has had to go to hospital, her pension has been stopped by the Provincial Government. Yesterday evening the Saanich Council found itself saddled with the cost of maintaining the woman's son and also paying seventy cents daily towards the hospital costs of his mother.

The action of the government was trenchantly criticized by Reeve Crouch and councillors, it being commented that, while the government would save the monthly pension payments, the sum was so small as to affect the financial position of the council.

The government's action will be placed before the Union of B.C. Municipalities, and other interested organizations, to secure joint action in opposition.

FRENCH NOTE MADE PUBLIC

Message to Washington Gives Reasons For Request For Debt Holiday Extension

Says Proposal Is Sequel to President Hoover's Moratorium Move

Canadian Press and American Press

Washington, Dec. 2.—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, carrying the French note referring to the country's proposal for postponement of the December 15 war debt payment to-day conferred with President Hoover on that and the British communication.

WAIT WITH CONFIDENCE

Paris, Dec. 2.—The second French note requesting postponement of the war debt payment due the United States in December noted with satisfaction to-day that President Hoover was disposed to recommend to the United States Congress a new examination of the proposal.

The French text of the note, which had previously been sent to Washington, was made public shortly after noon to-day. It renewed the request for suspension of the $20,000,000 in interest.

In closing the document says:

"The reception which will be given to the original note will be determined by the French government, which realizes all of the consequences the decision of the President of the United States may have for improving or making worse the tragic situation resulting from the World War."

As for the recommendation of the United States, which was contained in his first reply to the French request for postponement, the communication says that from the French viewpoint this implied the President believed such a step deemed necessary.

It is added that France realizes a reduction of Europe's debts to the United States would react on the American economic situation.

CONCERNED NOTES

During the construction of the French debt granted by the United States in 1926, the gravity of the economic and financial crisis has forced all interested governments to modify their terms with respect to the settlement of intergovernmental debts, and to adopt a series of concerted measures affecting reparations and debts both ways.

The French government "it says, "desires to emphasize it never has the intention of testing the judicial validity of the various agreements which are the basis of the war debts."

The postponement now requested says the memorandum is the normal sequel to President Hoover's initiative in declaring the moratorium in 1931 and leaves intact the rights of both parties.

HEAVY BURDEN

Referring to the moratorium, the note emphasizes the United States memorandum at the time of its declaration admitted the weight of the burden of inter-governmental debts in this period of crisis.

Referring to the Hoover-Laval communiqué issued at Washington last summer, the note records that document states "a new arrangement concerning inter-governmental debts for the period of the depression might be necessary, provided the initiative came from the European powers chiefly interested."

Europe, the note says, did it part and granted Germany reduction of 90 per cent in a three-year moratorium on reparations.

STILL IN HOSPITAL

Mr. Howard, Dec. 2.—The provincial government has ordered immediate cessation of direct relief payments to unorganized districts contiguous to the city of Nanaimo.

C. L. Monroe, government agent, this morning announced that all direct relief will be distributed in goods until further notice. Instruction to that effect had been received from Victoria, he announced.

The new order will affect several hundred families resident in the unorganized districts on the east coast of Vancouver Island northward from Ladysmith.

About 850 men on relief work quit their jobs yesterday in protest against the new relief scale and 400 men and women shared in a demonstration in front of the courthouse, demanding payment of $15 weekly for man and wife with $4 added for each child.

HOLDUP OF J. H. CHALMERS, taxidriver, abducted at 2:35 a.m. November 10 and robbed of $4 cash and 1 car.

HOLDUP OF MRS. I. G. SWAIN, cashier of the Palace Creek Woolsey, November 28, when $12 was taken.

The men were remanded until December 8 for sentence.

Jackson C. Gillon, charged with Keown and Davidson in connection with the holdup of E. Thompson, pleaded not guilty and was remanded till December 8 for hearing.

"With his colleagues at the City Hall, Mr. Preston was always popular and highly respected, and his readiness to respond to many demands on behalf of generosity endeared him to all his fellow employees. His retiring disposition, coupled with his well-known courteous manner won him a host of loyal friends.

In his professional capacity, Mr. Preston was held in the highest repute on the Pacific Coast, and many of his ideas have been adopted by municipal engineers throughout Canada.

Edwin G. Smith, city treasurer, and senior member of the city staff, expressed sincere regret.

"I always knew Mr. Preston as a gentleman and a man of great capabilities," he said. "The loss will be keenly felt here to-day."

JUST COMPLETED BIG TASK

Mr. Preston had just seen brought to a successful conclusion the largest waterworks improvements undertaken during his services with the city, the installation of a cross-section main and a feeder main. This was finished not long ago.

Members of the provincial government of Penzance, Cornwall, Mr. Preston was born in 1881. He learned his profession of engineering with a highly-reputed firm of municipal engineers, after graduating from college. He became an associate member of the Institute of Civil Engineers in England in 1906.

He took up the post of engineer designer of sewers and water mains in New Westminster when he came to western Canada, and in 1913 accepted a similar post at Victoria. He became assistant engineer under Engineer Rust, whom he later succeeded.

He became an associate member of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers in 1913 and a certified member of the Association of Professional Engineers of British Columbia in 1920.

FINE WATERWORKS SYSTEM

Among the major works conducted under his direction were the building of the Johnson Street Bridge and the improvement of the city's waterworks system. After retirement from service developed to-day was a tribute to his untiring zeal and capabilities being one of the finest of any city on the coast. The fact that Victoria has few troubles with its waterworks, sewers and streets was a testimonial to his keen supervision.

Mr. Preston lived with his wife and daughter, Daphne, at 1590 Despard Avenue.

The survivors also include the mother, and one brother, Dr. A. W. Preston, and one sister, Mrs. Edmund Cartwright in England. Mrs. Preston's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sturcliffe, live at Wilmet Place here.

After the funeral service to-morrow, the remains will be forwarded to Vancouver for cremation.

The loss to the United Kingdom and the United States taxpayers would suffer from reconsideration of the war debts cannot be measured in the same scales as the untold loss of wealth and human misery caused by the present economic crisis.

EXCHANGE PENALTY

"The British debt is expressed in terms of gold, but the burden on the British people is measured in terms of sterling. The payment due December 15 is owing to this circumstance increased from $19,750,000 to approximately $30,000,000.

"Under the stress of the present emergency, His Majesty's Government had to modify their system and adopt tariffs but the United Kingdom still imports from abroad goods to the value of several hundreds of millions of pounds sterling in excess of what it exports, and it would be necessary to consider what action could be taken to secure that the sterling proceeds of these imports were used more largely for the benefit of the British market.

TO DEAL WITH ALL

If President Hoover's hopes are to be realized, definite remedial action requires to be taken to deal not merely with the British war debt but also with the whole system of inter-governmental obligations with which it is related.

"It has been the object of His Majesty's Government to take all possible steps to mitigate fluctuations in the relative value of sterling and gold currencies. To this end they have acquired certain reserves in gold and have established a gold exchange rate.

"In the present circumstances this could be done only by adopting measures which would further restrict the British purchase of American goods."

FULL STATEMENT

Mentioning commodity prices, the note says:

His Majesty's Government trust the full statement of their views which they have now made will demonstrate clearly the ground on which their request was based, namely their own profound conviction that a resumption of the trade restrictions established before the Hoover moratorium would inevitably deepen the depression in world trade and would lead to further falls in commodity prices, with disastrous consequences from which no nation would be exempt."

WHEN A. CRAMER, a spokesman for the meeting outside the city, excitedly declared the men "would not be dictated to by the council," Mayor Barbary commented. "If that is your attitude you can stay here and let the side-men from the council enter."

Arrangements were subsequently made for a meeting this evening between the council and representatives of city workmen.

NEW TARIFF DEBT ANGLE

United States to meet debt payments would unsettle exchanges and tend to prolong and to deepen the world depression.

So, too, as the debtor nations are compelled by events to augment their export surpluses in order to meet intergovernmental debt burdens, their diminished purchasing power will reflect itself in diminished receipts for producers in the creditor country, with consequent fall in price, depression of industry and unemployment.

The loss to the United Kingdom and the United States taxpayers would suffer from reconsideration of the war debts cannot be measured in the same scales as the untold loss of wealth and human misery caused by the present economic crisis.

TWO VIEWS ON TREATY STATED

Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 2.—The St. Lawrence waterway treaty was alternately described to a Senate committee yesterday as the means of saving a "marooned" middle west from "dry rot" and a pact which should be rejected because it would not give the United States a "square deal."

The two views were expressed to the foreign relations sub-committee considering the treaty.

Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, spokesman for the Mississippi Valley Association, said the treaty's limitation of water diversion at Chicago would endanger the waterway from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico.

Fred S. Keiser, traffic manager of the Duluth Board of Trade, pictured the St. Lawrence project as a vital necessity for the states tributary to the lakes. He said the middle west had been "marooned" economically by the Panama Canal and high freight rates.

Newton presented a resolution from his association favoring the St. Lawrence, but urging rejection of the treaty in order that it could be modified to permit sufficient water diversion to ensure a commercially navigable channel from the Great Lakes to the gulf.

CONFERENCE AT OTTAWA JAN. 17

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—Tuesday, January 17, has been fixed as the date for the opening of the Dominion-provincial conference on unemployment and allied problems. Announcement to this effect was made by Premier Bennett yesterday evening.

Contributory unemployment insurance will be one of the major subjects on the agenda.

Given by urgent needs to pan a few dollars worth of gold dust from creeks and worked-over gold fields or lured by hopes of wealth power and luxury to prospect in remote and unbroken wildernesses, hundreds of thousands of men—and some women—have been engaged with picks, picks and sluice boxes. Many unemployed have received instructions in gold mining techniques. Some have made strikes; many have made wages and many have failed. Many abandoned workings have been reopened by operating companies.

The most recent gold strike in Canada was reported November 7 at Lake Okaska in Tibbleton Township, Quebec, northeast of the rich Fascales and Longmont mines. Mr. Jacques Wood, prospector of Senneville, Que., discovered a vein forty feet wide with considerable free gold while on a hunting trip with a party of business men. As soon as the find was reported prospectors rushed to the region to stake claims for miles east and west of the vein, and most of them went by airplane.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT TARIFF BOARD MEMBERSHIP

According to a dispatch from Ottawa to The Toronto Mail and Empire to-day the Bennett government has run into "unexpected difficulties" in the appointment of the Tariff Board for which legislation was passed at the 1931 session of Parliament. Two of the men for whom it is suggested the Prime Minister has been angling, Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, and Mr. Justice Sedgwick of Toronto, do not seem to have been attracted by the bait, or, as The Mail and Empire's dispatch says, are "none too enthusiastic about the assignment." It is said that "personal reasons intrude in both cases." Meanwhile, the government, "having set its heart, so to speak, on getting these men, is more or less in a quandary."

It is not particularly surprising that the Premier of Alberta and a judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario should be "none too enthusiastic about the assignment." Whatever their personal views may be about the present government at Ottawa, any contributions they might feel inclined to make to the tariff controversy could hardly be expected to take the form of a recommendation for raising or even retaining the present high scale of customs duties. It must be patent to them, as it is to everybody else save those who prefer to ignore facts, that a great deal of Canada's contraction of trade within the last two years has been caused directly and indirectly by the government's tariff policy. Both Premier Brownlee and Mr. Justice Sedgwick know that Mr. Bennett still believes in his own fiscal gospel and would remain unmoved by any recommendations a tariff commission might make to him unless they harmonized with his own views.

The Tariff Board appointed by the King government was abolished by the present government. The present Prime Minister took the matter in his own hands, jacked up the tariff at once, and in one form or another he has been doing it ever since. It is now as high as Haman's gallows. The only way to improve the state of the Dominion's external trade is to lower the scale of customs duties. The Dunning budget of 1930 would give the Prime Minister much that he requires in the way of information.

Admittedly a tariff board is necessary because of that arrangement in the trade treaty with Great Britain which permits a British exporter to appear before such a body if he thinks the goods he wants to sell to Canada are not getting a reasonable chance to compete with the Canadian product in this market. But an impartial and disinterested board would enter upon its duties in an atmosphere so prejudiced that it is small wonder the government is finding it difficult to find men for the job.

JUNKERDOM TO REMAIN IN CONTROL OF GERMANY

Another government in Germany is to be formed by General Kurt von Schleicher, at present Minister of Defence and always understood to be the power behind the Von Papen ministry, who will now become Chancellor and will no doubt surround himself by colleagues of the Junker type. In other words, this is to be new "presidential cabinet," responsible only to the President and not to the Reichstag.

It may be that internal conditions in Germany can best be dealt with by this form of government, which is nothing less than a dictatorship by a minority element. It is hardly likely that Adolf Hitler, the Nazi leader, will change his mind and take a cabinet post if one should be offered to him as the head of the largest single party in the Reichstag. He had his chance—a pretty hopeless task at best—to form a coalition ministry, but he failed to obtain a political mixture that could hope to win the support of the majority in the Reichstag. This was the condition laid down by President von Hindenburg. Hitler declared, however, that he was prepared to form a "presidential ministry" and place the Nazi movement at the disposal of such a cabinet and carry on in a manner similar to that pursued by Von Papen, now presumably to be continued by Von Schleicher. Only yesterday, moreover, the Nazi chieftain once again demanded that he be made Chancellor. He got his reply this morning in the selection of the so-called "mystery man" of German politics—Von Schleicher.

There is no way of telling at this stage whether the German people prefer, if they are destined to have a dictatorship, to have their affairs run by a Junker or a Fascist. The older generation has had its fill of Junkerdom; but they may feel more secure for the time being in the knowledge that Von Schleicher will not dare to go too far against the will of the people as expressed in different forms at the Reichstag elections last month. No matter how those votes were distributed, the great majority of them were unquestionably cast in favor of the Republic and the Constitution of Weimar which gave it birth—and in opposition to extremism in any form. On the other hand, they have had plenty of time in recent months to digest the numerous extreme policies to which the Hitlerites are pledged; and they are sufficiently intelligent to realize that serious additional internal chaos would result if they were put into operation.

In any event, the present arrangement in Germany is an expedient, and a very doubtful one, the adoption of which has been determined by the inability of the various parties to agree upon a coalition government. Resort to this expedient again, moreover, is almost certain to increase the bitterness of the two major extreme elements, the Nazis and the Communists; the one because it naturally takes the stand that Hitler should be the dictator instead of Von Schleicher, the other because as the extreme Left it objects to have to bow to the extreme Right. Hence, the danger of civil war still remains in Germany.

VICTORIA LOSES A VALUABLE OFFICIAL

Mr. F. M. Preston was an able, conscientious official, who as head of the engineering and works department rendered valuable service to the city, and his untimely passing yesterday evening will be universally deplored. He had been associated with the municipality in a professional capacity for more than twenty years, and his record was marked by the efficient supervision of many important works. He gave everything that was in him in skill, zeal and industry to the city service and there can be no doubt that the strain on his vitality, arising from the requirements and complexities of his office and his conception of public duty, was responsible for the sudden illness to which he succumbed.

The post of engineer for a municipality is usually exacting, and very often distracting. This has been particularly true in Victoria in the light of the record. While this is a rather small community, our city engineers have had to meet perplexities more baffling to men of professional size, training and tradition than have confronted the heads of engineering services in communities many times larger or private corporations of vast magnitude. If in boom periods the engineer, out of his better knowledge, tries to put the brake on stupid extravagance in expenditures on public works, he invariably is criticized from all angles by a thoughtless public and the usual whoopie brigade which that public supports. When the boom collapses and the reaction sets in, as at present, with the public developing a new-born zeal for any kind and all sorts of economy in the light of the inevitable tax bill, with boomster organizations becoming economy associations, the city engineer is miraculously transformed into an apostle of extravagance; he becomes the target for the inane puerilities of peanut aspirants for office; he has to run the gauntlet of all kinds of criticism, much of it uninformed or silly, and some of it from people who scarcely know the difference between a sever pipe and a garbage can. To all of this his position bars him from replying.

Not only Mr. Preston, but most of his predecessors have had to contend with these idiosyncrasies, and the fact that the late city engineer did it so well over his twenty years of office in the municipal service, implies an arresting tribute to his capacity, honesty and zeal. Unostentatious, patient and always courteous, Mr. Preston had a large circle of friends who will regret his loss in an intimate personal sense. The Times, in full appreciation of the fine service which Mr. Preston has rendered to this city, desires to record its deepest regret over the sudden termination of his useful career, and to express its sympathy with his family in their bereavement.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN PRESENTS BANK'S STATEMENT

While banks in the United States have been tottering and failing by the thousands, the banks of Canada still remain one of the most important stabilizing influences in a very difficult period. We are reminded of this by the address which Sir Robert Borden in his capacity as President of Barclays Bank (Canada) delivered the other day, in which he said the institution's business had shown a steady increase in Canadian current and savings accounts, while the situation had been well maintained in regard to advances and discounts. Sir Robert's statement is an encouraging one; but he tempered it with a warning in these significant words:

Abundant harvests have given little return; abounding plenty has been comparatively helpless before the challenge of absolute want; industry has shrunk before the advance of continuous, abnormal unemployment; the means of subsistence and the resources of livelihood have been involved in a system of absolutely unequal distribution. Wherein shall a remedy be found? Men of the highest ability and widest experience have pondered and spoken and written; but the problem remains unsolved and the chapter has not been met.

Sir Robert followed this with the reminder to his listeners that the lesson of thrift and of saving might well be commended to the attention of governments, for expenditure and consequent taxation have increased out of all proportion to the increase in population and wealth. Sir Robert also emphasized the view to which he often has given expression that the future, not only of prosperity but of civilization, depends largely upon the reduction of world armaments, "the final disposition of war reparations and debts, and the determination of the world's peoples to substitute judicial arbitration for war's violence and destruction."

Loose Ends

We lay down eternal principles and shape a platform which will carry the full weight of the state we frown on patronage and pork. We oppose liquor, especially if weak and we convert Mr. Bennett.

By H. B. W.

ETERNAL PRINCIPLES

THAT GREAT stirring of the proletariat, which as yet possesses no name but is known among us as the Blossom Movement, since Colonel Blossom started it—that noble writing of a down-trodden people writhed anew last night and, with such good results that, when the evening was over, we found that we had split up into two great Movements instead of one. This, as the Colonel observed, showed that we should ignore liquor. But if liquor must be sold—and, frankly, he couldn't see how we could prevent it—he demanded emphatically that prices be reduced, the size of bottles increased, beer glasses enlarged and something done about the quality of beer so that a man would know he had drunk something when he had drunk something. Just now, he indicated, we must first decide whether we should be a Movement of the left or the right, and Mr. Pudbury shouted, "Aw, let's go straight ahead like men!" Colonel Blossom's attempts to explain the classical meaning of right and left were cut short by shouts of applause for Mr. Pudbury's sentiment. So it was decided to go straight ahead like men. That is the kind of people we are.

WHY MR. BEAK withdrew from the Movement to form a new Movement of his own and how we are preparing to form a union of all Movements must wait for another instalment of this great historic record. But as Mrs. Glumby pointed out, our Movement already has made striking progress in the space of only a week, for no sooner was it intimated that we favored matrimony and were against bachelors than it was announced in Ottawa that Mr. Bennett was going to get married. Mr. Pudbury said he would have thought Mr. Bennett had grief enough already, but looking hard at Mrs. Glumby, he supposed that some men could stand anything.

BEAK would accept it, but he would say, "without mentioning names, that some people are intolerable busybodies and snoopers. Mrs. Glumby would hate to say what certain other people were—especially of a Saturday night. Colonel Blossom, though we all understand one another's viewpoint now and we had better get on with our liquor policy.

TEMPERANCE

MR. PUDBURY said our Movement should deplore liquor. "Liquor," said Mr. Pudbury, "we never did no one no good except under special circumstances." "Oh, oh," said Mrs. Glumby. She said there seemed to be a lot of special circumstances out in this district. Mr. Pudbury would ignore the unworthy innuendo and would repeat that we should deplore liquor. But if liquor must be sold—and, frankly, he couldn't see how we could prevent it—he demanded emphatically that prices be reduced, the size of bottles increased, beer glasses enlarged and something done about the quality of beer so that a man would know he had drunk something when he had drunk something. Just now, he indicated, we must first decide whether we should be a Movement of the left or the right, and Mr. Pudbury shouted, "Aw, let's go straight ahead like men!" Colonel Blossom's attempts to explain the classical meaning of right and left were cut short by shouts of applause for Mr. Pudbury's sentiment. So it was decided to go straight ahead like men. That is the kind of people we are.

WHY MR. BEAK withdrew from the Movement to form a new Movement of his own and how we are preparing to form a union of all Movements must wait for another instalment of this great historic record. But as Mrs. Glumby pointed out, our Movement already has made striking progress in the space of only a week, for no sooner was it intimated that we favored matrimony and were against bachelors than it was announced in Ottawa that Mr. Bennett was going to get married. Mr. Pudbury said he would have thought Mr. Bennett had grief enough already, but looking hard at Mrs. Glumby, he supposed that some men could stand anything.

THE FIRST eternal principle laid down by our Movement was non-patronage. We all agreed on it. There was a splendid unanimity in our resolve that when elected we would tolerate no Patronage whatever. Colonel Blossom said Patronage was ruining the country. He could give many examples but one would suffice. He referred to the case of Mr. S., who had been appointed to the Government Printing Bureau simply because he was a friend of the minister of X—, which was all the more outrageous in that this job had been promised to the Colonel's nephew, and still more outrageous in that his nephew and the Colonel himself had worked most energetically for the Conservative Party at the last election. This, said the Colonel, was the kind of patronage which was ruining the country and he made it clear that, when elected, he would right this particular wrong anyway. (His nephew had been out of work ever since the election, he said, and the Conservative Party hadn't even paid him in full for what he had done then.) And Mr. Pudbury said we must vindicate our non-patronage policy, when elected, by firing all the Tories and Grits out of our public service and appointing men who, like us, were against all parties. Personally, he said, he was not a grinch, but he would say that if the government had bought some of his good barnyard stuff, when he offered it, and put it into the lawns, the maple trees of Parliament Square wouldn't have died.

IDEALISM

OUR ROAD POLICY was equally IDEALISM

order to improve results to the fruit shippers of the province in the prairie markets, a fruit-and-produce exchange has been organized in British Columbia.

In spite of many difficulties the Dominion government's two fish hatcheries at Babine Lake and Stuart Lake are completed and stocked with eggs. Each hatchery has a capacity of 10,000,000 eggs, and this year, although completed rather late in the season, 5,000,000 eggs have been stored on the Babine Hatchery and 3,000,000 in the Stuart Lake building.

The bank clearings for the month of November showed a total of $5,030,519. This is an advance of over a million dollars as compared with last year's record.

Thomas Catterall has secured the contract for the palatial residence of Hon. James Dunsmuir at Hatley Park, from the office of S. McClure. He will commence on the spacious mansion and he warned us that we must not use our power for our own ends. So it was resolved that our road should only be paved with asphalt. But even this small and much-needed improvement was regarded by Mr. Beak as sectional and selfish. Mr. Beak does not live on our road and his road is full of holes. He said he would never support such an obvious attempt to use the power of our Movement for purely material advantage.

The Klondike basketball team have finished their tour. They arrived home yesterday afternoon after a three-week's tour of the Puget Sound cities where they played a number of games. Although they were not very successful they had a wonderful time.

The rugby game on Saturday between Victoria and J.B.A.A. was peculiar in many ways. The fact that Victoria won by a score of 9 to 3 does not indicate much.

MR. WHIFFLETON suggested that we drop the plank about asphalting our road (Mr. Whiffleton lives on the main highway, which is already paved), but Colonel Blossom thought of a better way to meet Mr. Beak's objection. He said we must be fair and just and unselfish about such things, so he proposed that our platform be extended to include asphalt paving for Mr. Beak's road, too. Nothing could be fairer than that. Mr. Beak with a magnificent gesture of loyalty and helpful cooperation, immediately accepted this compromise in the spirit in which it was offered.

DANGEROUS STUFF

WE CAME then to the question of Social Services. Mrs. Glumby declared boldly that our Movement should cut out social services altogether. "Wot right have people got to be going in for social services and parties and teas and all that kind of stuff at a time like this—and honest men starvin'?" Mrs. Glumby demanded. She would name no names, but a certain lady who lived in a big stone house at the end of a long driveway not far from here, was still entertaining—all the time on a lavish scale despite the depression. "Social services?" asked Mrs. Glumby, "why that woman is going in for social stuff every day of the week, including Sundays. That's wot makes Bolesters in this country." This lady (whom we recognized as Mrs. Slogg-Mortimer) had never attended the whist drives at the Community Hall like ordinary folks and had gone about the country cutting people dead, said Mrs. Glumby. "The goo-latin is good for her," said Mrs. Glumby, but as Colonel Blossom observed that we must not propose anything violent or revolutionary, Mrs. Glumby said she would be satisfied merely to pull off Mrs. Slogg-Mortimer's face, scrape the paint off her face and break some of her best china.

THE LANDSBURG BLUNDER OR JOHNSON STREET BRIDGE

To the Editor—In your issue of November 30 there appears a letter from F. Landsberg lauding Mr. Leeming and criticizing Mr. Andros. Much of the letter is true and correct. This paragraph is, however, grotesque in part:

"It was not until 1922, when Mr. Leeming became an alderman that any financial leadership was shown and a policy developed that would lead the city out of the woods, and to the lake, which undoubtedly belong most of the credit."

Mr. Landsberg has an unfortunate faculty of either forgetting or not learning the facts. I was mayor during that year. The council had inherited a debt of $365,000 owing to

NOVEMBER TAX COLLECTIONS UP

Graduation of city tax penalties this year had the effect of doubling collections for the month of November in current and arrears accounts, figures supplied by City Comptroller D. A. Macdonald show. The total for the month this year was $45,481 and for last year, $23,279.

The council has passed a policy in an endeavor to help taxpayers meet their bills without suffering too great a penalty. City Treasurer Edwin C.

Smith assisted in devising the schedule. It was pointed out that many taxpayers, after the first date when penalties are imposed, would let their accounts slide if the whole penalty were imposed at once.

LONE SURVIVOR OF "PONY BOYS"

Last of that gallant band of pony express riders which included "Buffalo Bill" Cody, "Wild Bill" Hickok, "Pony Bob" Haslam and Jim Moore, is William Campbell, now 92, of Victoria, Col. Campbell, ninety-two, recalls many thrilling tales of days when the mail was carried 1,400 miles from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Cal., by ponies' pounding hoofs in eight days.

ONE COAST TOWN HAS NO IDLE

Everybody Put to Work in Hyder, Says Alaska Lumber Baron, Here For Winter

William Gray, Alaskan lumber baron, has arrived in Victoria to spend the winter here, and with his family has taken a house on Cook Street.

"Hyder, Alaska, is one place on the Coast where there is no unemployment," said Mr. Gray. "This is due to the great vision and the directional ability of Dale Pitt, manager of the Premier Gold Mining Company. Mr. Pitt has taken advantage of the slackness of the labor market during the winter to rebuild roads 1,400 miles of trail to carry the Premier over-head tramline from Hyder to the mine and mill up the Salmon River. The result is that although all the mines except the Premier are closed down, there is no unemployment in the Hyder area, and there is no government relief problem."

He has been transferred to the eighteen miles of new, continuous cable the Premier is installing.

Mr. Gray was born a Canadian and in the east he and T. D. Pattullo, now Liberal leader in British Columbia, were boyhood friends. He came west and after going through his soundrounds became a prospector through the Klondike gold rush, became a Yukoner and then an Alaskan. His mills and timber holdings now supply the needs of the towns and settlements, and the mines along the Coast of the Alaska Panhandle. He has maintained a winter home in Tacoma, but decided to spend this winter in Victoria, because of the association he has with the large number of old-time Yukoners and Alaskans who now live here.

MAY FORM NEW SEWER RULING

Regulations to prohibit the discharge of gasoline and oils into city sewers may be drawn up at the City Hall shortly as a result of the sewer explosion in Montreal Wednesday.

G. M. Irwin, assistant city engineer, issued a warning to all citizens, and particularly to service station operators against employing such materials down sinks or basins in their sewers.

While Victoria's sewers are well-ventilated, a sufficient accumulation of this kind might cause trouble, Mr. Irwin said.

Colwood

Many parishioners and friends attended the Christmas sale of work held on Wednesday afternoon in Colwood Hall by the Women's Auxiliary to St. John's Church. The sale was opened by Rev. H. S. Payne and visitors were present from Langford, Luxton, Deep Bay, and Victoria. Mrs. W. R. Robinson, acting president of the auxiliary, was general convener. Those in charge of stalls were: Works, Mrs. H. H. Smith; Misses, Mrs. J. A. Wood and Mrs. T. Millburn; candy, Mrs. J. W. Little and Mrs. W. M. Brown; and bran tub, Mrs. C. Carnegie. Afternoon tea was served by Mrs. A. Godfrey, Mrs. C. Matheson and Miss Scott.

AUCTIONS AT CHICAGO SHOW

By R. P. HOWARD
Associated Press Staff Writer
Chicago, Dec. 2.—This was the day for cash dividends at the International Livestock Exposition here. Breeders and feeders, collecting cheques for the sale of prime animals, maintained optimism about the future of their branch of the farming industry.

It was auction time, the last step before the slaughter house for the baby bulls which won prizes for their youthful owners in the junior feeding contest.

Steers which reached perfection for 4-H Club members were turned over to representatives of the meat trade for holiday consumption.

Top price bidding awaited the final ring appearance of the Hereford steer which won the junior feeding honors for Kenneth Zink of Verona, Wis. Prices by bidding ranged much above the stockyards market level, although not approaching the $1.25 a pound paid yesterday for the grand champion "Hercord," Texas Steer."

Shorthorn men sold forty head of purebred at an average of $175 at an auction yesterday. At an Angus auction the average was $151.50, with the top at $825.

Love Unlocks The Door

By ANNIE S. SWAN

Biddy's face flushed, and her eyes became slightly rebellious. She laid down from her perch, and there was a moment's painful silence.

"I never expected that, father. She is a mere girl, I—I—"

Her feelings overcame her. She would have uttered a sigh, but she dashed out of the room, leaving Horne dismayed. He had not expected this. He had built high hopes on Biddy's common sense and wonderful tactful philosophy. He endured a very bad half hour. Then, unable to bear him longer, he went in search of her, but she was nowhere to be found.

"Miss Oliphant," he called. "Dinner is ready." "I saw her a little ago. She said she was going to the Cleugh Cottage to see Miss Gerard, and that would you please come down a little later and bring her home?"

CHAPTER XLII

Miss Oliphant's shop was closed, and she was going over her weekly accounts when a visitor was announced —Mr. Horne. She rose to greet him warmly. They had met more often in the last few weeks, and had arrived at a swift understanding of one another. Nobody rejoiced more heartily than Isabel Oliphant at the happy turn affairs had taken in her wife's life.

But Horne continued to look incredulous.

"I can't take it in. I'd better get away to London, I think, and leave them to fight it out. Life is too much for me."

"We haven't much to do with it that I can see," observed Miss Oliphant philosophically. "The brighter Mrs. Morrison, that used to be a terrible Calvinist, believing a body must be come a little bairn. If only my sister, Katie, had lived to see it! She knew, of course; I believe that, but I had like to see the light on her face. She lived in the dark a' her marriage. Durnal look o' glum, my man."

Horne was comforted more than he knew or could express.

She saw that he was too deeply moved for speech. Happily at the moment the tea-tray was the timely diversion, and a normal state of feeling was restored.

"I really came to see you, to-day, to speak about your niece. Has she been here again?"

"Yes, she was here yesterday. She's here most days on her way back and forth to her father's," said Miss Oliphant, giving her whole attention to the teapot. She could guess his errand, and perhaps she feared that the interview might be a trifle difficult.

"Did she tell you we had a letter from Scotland?"

"Yes."

"And that he wishes her to go out to British Columbia? He has fallen in with young Inglis, and they may work the place together."

"Yes, she told me a that."

"And did she also tell you that she is not willing to go?"

"Yes, she said that too. Indeed, she has now made our secret o' it fair to the world. When you took her first to Burton Lea."

"It's a point of view I can't quite understand. After all, she is his wife and I was brought up to think that a wife's place is at her husband's side."

Miss Oliphant nodded.

"That's the way of it, and still is, when it's a right mairriage."

Horne looked uncomfortable.

"This means on the part of complicated everything, and is especially awkward for her. We've done our best, Miss Oliphant, but you can't shut people's mouths. The only way would be for her to go."

"It's a risk, maybe, but she's an uncommon sensible lass, and your daughter has told me that it's a genuine love match."

"Did Biddy say that?"

"In this very room, sir."

"Does she come here sometimes?" asked Horne, looking as if he were pleased to hear it.

"Oh yes, they're come free time to time. Auld Bell Oliphant seems to have something to say they're no abuse hearin'. They're come. She was here yesterday."

"You are a power in this city, Miss Oliphant," said Horne involuntarily. "And perhaps we shall never know what we owe to you till you leave us."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

HINTS FOR SERVING WILD FOWL
BY SISTER MARY

After the hunting season opens many cooks are confronted with the task of cooking game of some sort. There is an open season on game birds in most states and several kinds are available in the markets.

Guinea hen, although not a game bird, has a "gamey" flavor and is roasted like pheasant. An onion, a few stalks of celery and two or three tablespoons butter dropped inside guinea hen or pheasant before roasting gives delicious flavor. This stuffing is not served.

Wild birds are usually liked rare, but care should be taken that they are not too rare. The smaller sized ones are broiled, either whole or in halves, and served on toast. The larger ones are roasted like young chickens and served much the same way. Any game can be disjointed or cut in halves and cooked in casserole, braised, baked in the pie of Mother Goose fame or fricassee.

JOBLESS CARE IS PARAMOUNT

Must Be Taken Out of Politics, E. B. Andros Tells Victoria West Gathering

Seven Aldermanic Candidates and One School Trustee Outline Their Platform

The need for taking the care of the unemployed out of politics because of the serious state of affairs now existing and a claim the City Council should have made preparations a year ago for the present emergency were points made by E. B. Andros, mayoralty candidate, at a campaign meeting in Victoria West School yesterday evening.

Seven aldermanic candidates and one school trustee addressed the meeting, which was attended by about seventy people and A. I. Kirkpatrick presided.

Mr. Andros commented by pointing out that if the taxpayers of Victoria were satisfied he would not be a candidate for mayor, but a growing feeling of discontent had manifested itself in the number of people who had come to him and urged him to run.

No one, he said, should be deceived by the claims made for a balanced budget, as no one could balance a budget by borrowing, and Victoria's balance had been secured by drawing from current expenditure and sinking funds. Why should the responsibilities of the present generation be placed on the children? Mr. Andros asked. Why should the bill be passed?

Mr. Andros stated that what was needed was a mayor with the courage and determination to face present problems in the proper British spirit. The trouble was that Victoria had been allowed to be run by a clique of men who had interest in their estates and the Publicity Bureau and such like.

Major Leeming, he said, was a decent man and sincere, but his administration was doing what it was told.

Elections were being held all over the world and Victoria was being ignored. A man must be placed in the City Hall at the next election who would legislate for all classes, not one or two.

"If we cannot afford to pay for the airport, the publicity bureau and other non-essentials, there must be eliminated the unnecessary expenses," selected the re-solvency candidate said.

In dealing with the sale of bonds over the City Hall counter, Mr. Andros pointed out that a profit of $24,000 had been made by someone, because the bonds had been sold for 100 cents on the dollar to citizens who had come to bond dealers. A letter to the press he asserted, had been signed by a long list of firms, such as Pemberton & Son, and had contained a denial any profit had been made by the bond firms. Mr. Andros asked his audience to draw its own conclusions.

Tourist Trade

The prospects of United States tourist trade for 1933 were delusion and a state of panic, according to a leading publicist.

"They're going to get beer and whiskey down there the same as we," he observed. "Besides, they haven't got the money to travel."

The $25,000 re-solvency grant should be put toward lessening the taxes, but Mayor Leeming had indicated definitely he would not even offer a referendum on the publicity bureau question if he were given another term. The airport also was not essential, and the tax payers should not be forced to spend money to develop a least-used airport, Andros asserted. In any case, it appeared likely the Dominion Government would soon commence building airports across Canada as an unemployment relief scheme.

In a speech, Mr. Andros said Major Leeming and his administration should have made preparations for inevitable expenditure on behalf of the jobless by cutting unnecessary expenditures. The present condition was easy to foresee a year and more ago, he stated.

Mr. Andros expressed the belief Major Leeming would raise the taxes if re-elected. He had already done so this year, and there was little reason to hope he would not raise the improvement levy to the 75 per cent limit.

The candidate reflected his audience of the whispering campaign against him concerning his ownership of property and affirmed he owned no less than $60,000 worth of property in Greater Victoria. He must be pretty good, he said, if this were the only score on which his opponents could attack him.

Mr. Andros stated it required no economic or financial expert to discover how $38,500 (one mill) could be spent immediately in the civic expenditure and humorously remarked that the miscellaneous item on the expense sheet covered a multitude of sins. He repeated the need for a courageous administration and observed that if he were elected he would give to civic affairs the same care and common sense that he had given to his own private career.

Other Candidates

Councillor R. T. Williams, seeking re-election, stated that anything that took revenue taxation should obtain his support. He said that regularized government sweepstakes would add a saving of 4 mills to Mr. Andros' 1 mill and that the abolition of the property grant would cut the tax rate another 1/2 mill. He said he appealed to the electorate on his past record in the constituency where, he added, he had often played a lone hand against certain interests.

Frank LeRoy, aldermanic candidate for the city, said that anything that took revenue taxation should obtain his support. He said that regularized government sweepstakes would add a saving of 4 mills to Mr. Andros' 1 mill and that the abolition of the property grant would cut the tax rate another 1/2 mill. He said he appealed to the electorate on his past record in the constituency where, he added, he had often played a lone hand against certain interests.

URGES NEW YORK REORGANIZATION

Alfred E. Smith Suggests Sweeping Changes in Administration

Robert St. John, Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Dec. 2.—In ninety minutes yesterday, Alfred E. Smith, with blueprints, charts and record books spread out before him, outlined a plan which would revolutionize the city government of New York City.

Mr. Smith presented his ideas to the Hofstader committee of the Legislature, which has spent eighteen months investigating the Tammany-controlled city government and has reached the stage of formulating concrete recommendations to the Legislature for basic improvement.

Mr. Smith's programme called for: 1. Unification of a city legislature of two houses, with the mayor as supreme executive officer, assisted by ten "cabinet members" and an elective assistant mayor.

2. Elimination of practically all the present county and borough offices with the object of making New York "one city" instead of "five cities in one."

3. Life appointment for all judges instead of choice by election, with the governor naming judges of the higher courts and the mayor naming the magistrates and lower court judges.

4. Payment of all teachers' salaries by the state instead of by cities and towns.

5. Adoption of a single, unified pension system.

6. Adoption of a system whereby the cost of major public improvements would be spread over the entire city.

7. Subway Problem

7. Unification of the New York subway system and elimination of stockholders in the subway companies.

8. That anything in excess of the nickel that is paid for car fare goes directly to the city to relieve the crushing burden of sinking funds and interest on the enormous amount of money expended on the subways.

9. Adoption of toll charges for use of New York bridges.

For Governor Smith, a native of the city, long East Side, has held municipal offices ranging from sheriff to president of the board of aldermen. During his four terms as governor he brought about a complete reorganization of the state government.

In making suggestions for immediate relief of financial problems troubling the city fathers, he repeatedly criticized the U.S. Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

"The R.F.C." he exclaimed, "is not willing to lend money (for an East Side housing project because they are talking about adequate security and they are talking about additional equity money. They've got a lot of high toned phrases down there that really don't mean anything."

RENAISSANCE LIFE SHOWN

Prof. A. C. Cooke of U.B.C. Gives Broader View of Period in Italy

Through Illustrations of Famous Masters Points to Features of Era

ARTIST ILLUSTRATED OWN EPOCH

Principally did he illustrate these changes through pictures which, irrespective of theme, included in their composition, characters straight from peoples of the fifteenth century in which they lived. To indicate his point, he noted that canvases depicting the meeting of Venus and Mars, classical in theme, were shown against a background of renaissance scenes.

He also illustrated the Madonna, the Virgin of the Lippe, Ghirlandajo, Polajuolo, Uccello, Carpaccio, Bellini and other characteristic men of the times, he illustrated his various points.

To bring out the contrast between their productions and those of earlier and later artists, he showed various scenes from three periods indicative of the nature of the paintings.

That of the Renaissance artists were of great value, he said, because they owing to the manner in which they showed detail.

Although many of the works had been destroyed a sufficient number remained to give a fairly accurate idea of the life of the era, from birth to death.

WORKS OF MASTERS

With sides of the works of Botticelli, Gonnoli, Fra Filippo Lippi, Ghirlandajo, Polajuolo, Uccello, Carpaccio, Bellini and other characteristic men of the times, he illustrated his various points.

To bring out the contrast between their productions and those of earlier and later artists, he showed various scenes from three periods indicative of the nature of the paintings.

That of the Renaissance artists were of great value, he said, because they owing to the manner in which they showed detail.

Styles of architecture, castles, showing gothic and Roman arches, views of the grape press, horse trappings and armor, costumes, weapons, interiors, scenes from Florentine homes and mansions, fashions, furniture, personalities, events, pageants, crowds, and a general cross section of the period well indicated in the various sides.

Prof. Cooke carried his audience back through history to the time before the first cities, railways, modern architecture and the myriad of present-day conveniences unknown to the people of the fifteenth century.

That of the Renaissance artists were of great value, he said, because they owing to the manner in which they showed detail.

Instead of assuming there was a definite date upon which to start off that period, he preferred to consider the changes introduced by Europe was at that time.

It was undergoing four revolutions at once, one which began the institution of a new economic system, another which altered political outlooks, a third, resulting from the former two, which brought about a new social order, and a fourth which found expression in a type of art widely different from that of the Middle Ages.

NEW VIEW ON RENAISSANCE

He presented a more modern conception of the renaissance from that in text books which dated it from the fall of the eastern Mediterranean.

Instead of assuming there was a definite date upon which to start off that period, he preferred to consider the changes introduced by Europe was at that time.

It was undergoing four revolutions at once, one which began the institution of a new economic system, another which altered political outlooks, a third, resulting from the former two, which brought about a new social order, and a fourth which found expression in a type of art widely different from that of the Middle Ages.

ECONOMIC CHANGE

Touching on the first, he showed how the failure of the guilds broke down the old economic system, how the Black Plague, with its toll on humanity, increased the value of labor and decreased the worth of land, and how a new nobility of wealth was created with the expansion of commerce. Then was born, he believed, the capitalistic system, in which increasing capital seeking opportunities for investment reorganized the economic structure of the continent.

In the political sphere the general idea of a universal Christian empire

gave way to a spirit of growing nationalisms in which the rich opportunist found a chance to set himself up in a position of prominence which was evident in the ascension of Mussolini.

The protege was ever anxious to retain the patron's goodwill by signifying the latter's achievements in art.

The spirit of the classics was recaptured and a new interpretation placed upon the works of earlier masters. Prof. Cooke touched upon the humanist movement in which man became the centre of things to which he turned an inquiring mind.

MANHARD OF HISTORY

Just as medieval art had been called the "handmaid of religion," renaissance art became the "handmaid of politics."

He continued. This followed mainly the desire of the patron, usually a prince or head of a big and wealthy family, to see his deeds recorded and his personality or appearance at least captured in the lines of the artist.

To his way of thinking the Florentine art of the time, removed as it was generally from an intensive study of the nude and from the usually accepted conversion of religious presenta-

Vancouver, Dec. 2.—A new trial was ordered by the B.C. Court of Appeal yesterday for Andrew Miller, who had been convicted at the Prince George assizes in September of obtaining $700 by false pretences from a fire insurance company and the wife of Chief Justice Morrissey to three years' imprisonment. Mr. Justice McPhillips would have gone farther than the majority of the court and quashed the conviction.

In all, Mr. Miller's plans to save some $30,000 odd all by himself and without the consent of the aldermen and when he has saved all this $30,000, he will disperse the so-called savings he has caused double the expenditure in other directions. Some financial foresight.

The prosecution alleged Miller had removed some of the furniture, for which he claimed insurance, from the house before the fire.

DAUGHTER'S STATEMENT

Miller's appeal was allowed on the ground the trial judge had misdirected the jury with respect to the statement introduced by the prosecution through the accused's daughter, who was a defense witness. The statement received the seal of the house on fire at the request of the father. Under oath on the witness stand she contradicted the statement.

The majority of the court accepted the evidence and quashed the conviction.

On the other hand, Mr. Justice Martin, although he would have given the sentence to two years, held that the trial judge was right in sentencing him to two years.

The majority of the court accepted the evidence and quashed the conviction.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of my dearly beloved husband, Ernest William (Ernie) Prior, who passed away December 1, 1932.

Always so good, unselfish and kind. None on this earth your equal I'll find; Honorable and true in all your ways. Long and happy were our many days. Honest and liberal, ever upright. Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.

Just as your judgment, always right. One in a million, that husband, was you. Three years have passed, my heart still sore.

A loving husband, so tender and kind. What beautiful memories you left behind. Sadly missed by his loving wife and family.

FIJIS SEEK CANADA TRADE

PINES NEW INDUSTRY
 The Fijis are now making a specialty of canned pineapples, and it is the intention of Sir Murchison, Fletcher to make inquiries regarding the shipping of more canned products to this country.

The pineapple industry is new to the Fiji Islands, but it is being developed steadily by Suva interests with local capital. "Our pines will compete with any in the world," said the Governor. He gave credit to Canadian canners, who sent experts to the Fijis a few years ago to advise the producers on the canning of pines.

The experiments of the Hawaiian Pineapple Company in the growing of pines in the Fijis proved most successful, but under the reorganization scheme of that corporation little is being done at the present time. The company, however, holds large acreage for cultivation.

All the lumber which is used in the Fijis for the construction of wooden houses and other purposes by the Government is imported from British Columbia, but the shipments were limited to the needs of the islands.

WANT TOURISTS

Suva, according to Sir Murchison Fletcher, hopes to attract tourists from Canada, who now go to Honolulu in large numbers, as well as from the Australian countries. A publicity organization is functioning in Suva with a view to attracting tourists to the islands.

An election meeting in the interests of E. B. Andrus, mayoralty candidate, will be held in Orlandos School this evening at 8 o'clock. P. Walls will act as chairman.

Vital statistics for November show that 838 births were registered, 424 deaths and 328 marriage in British Columbia. Thirty-one babies under one year of age were included in the deaths. Vancouver reported 301 births, 177 deaths and 141 marriages; New Westminster, fifty-one, twenty-four and thirty-four; Victoria, forty-one, thirty-seven; Gastown, one; twenty-three marriages; Nanaimo, fourteen and six; Duran, fourteen, five and one; Cumberland, six, four and three; Ladysmith, two, two and two; Port Alberni, five, four and one.

With the Christmas season approaching one's mind turns to the fireside and a Chesterfield Suite. Without a doubt it is the heart of the home. The Standard Furniture Company makes it possible to own one by the exceptional low prices asked and easy terms given. Complete $89.50

Nate Druxman Signs Former Champion for Bout With Brilliant Yakima Youth Over Six Rounds in Seattle on Tuesday Night.

HYGRO, RATED the best thoroughbred sprinter on the American turf, will race this winter at Agua Caliente. This superb thoroughbred, sired by a stallion out of the great Rudy Light, went on the track recently as a result of George Wingfield's decision to retire from racing, and was purchased at the Bowie sales by Abe Bartlestein. The price paid was $12,000. With Epinard on in place of Epinard, who has had a doubtful year, Hygro now is en route to Caliente, giving the stable four candidates for the $6,000 handicaps. These are Hygro, Sidney Grant, Yonkel and Polydorous.

While Hygro's principal victories have been achieved at the six furlong distance, Harry Unna, noted western trainer, is of the belief he can make the horse stay. Epinard could run all day and Unna's success in converting sprinters into routers has gained him an international reputation. Golden Prince, however, is a good horse, and his first money in a Calfornia handicap did not want to go beyond the brief distance until Unna took him in charge. Dominique was another he improved upon, and Sunspur had little more than sprinting tendencies until Unna took him in hand. Oddly enough, Golden Prince and Hygro cost Bartlestein the same amount.

Welterweight Champ, in First Bout After Eye Infliction, Knocks Out Chicago Battler in Second Round; Short Right to Jaw Ends Hostilities.

San Francisco, Dec. 2.—Jackie Fields, welterweight champion, returned to the ring yesterday evening after a six months layoff and showed ringsters he had lost none of his effectiveness by scoring a knockout over Tommy Herman, Chicago, in the second round of their scheduled ten-round bout. It was a non-title affair.

The champion, who has been inactive due to an eye ailment, impressed observers with his punching ability and the affliction that caused him to hang up the gloves did not appear to bother his work. He had no trouble finding the range and began thumping away at the start. It was a fast fight which was lashed with Fields forging in steadily to score with a left hook, meanwhile shaking off the right handers that Herman landed to the jaw. In one wild flurry during the opening session, Herman fell through the ropes while retreating before the champion's rushes.

Ottawa Senators Take Advantage of Penalties to Defeat Americans 4 to 3

Young Paul Haynes, former Windsor Bulldog centre ice player, now with Montreal Maroons, to-day was acclaimed the National Hockey League's most timely goal-getter. His tying goal in the last two seconds of regulation time and another in the final minute of play gave Maroons a 5 to 4 victory over their intra-city rivals, Canadiens.

Ottawa Senators, aided by twin penalties to New York Americans, rallied for three goals in the last period to win 4 to 3, while Lester Patrick's New York Rangers swept Detroit to their second defeat on home ice, 4 to 2.

Mervin Wentworth, big ex-Chicago defenceman, shared honors with Haynes in the Montreal triumph. After Baldy Northcott had scored the only first-period goal, Wentworth scored in the second period and added another goal in the third.

Canadiens trailed in the ruggedly-played game until the third period when, following Johnny Gagnon's second-period goal, Aurel Joliat, Wildor Larocque and Armand Mondor shot successive goals in the third after Wentworth's second goal. Haynes clinched a thrilling game with his two last-minute efforts.

REGINA EVEN-MONEY CHOICE TO-MORROW

Roughriders Given Good Chance of Winning Canadian Football Championship in Final Against Hamilton Tigers; Crowd of Around 10,000 Is Expected

Hamilton, Dec. 2.—Regina Roughriders and Frank Turville were both on deck to-day so Hamilton left the old battle-axe coming on and went ticket-buying. Close to 10,000 may be in the stands Saturday when Turville, his twisted ankle held in a special brace, leads Hamilton Tigers into the Canadian football final against the Roughriders.

Even with the east's greatest backfield in uniform, the Roughriders seemed certain to start little better than even-money favorites to retain the only Canadian sport title the west has been unable to win. This is partly because Turville's injured ankle may stand up for only a few minutes and mostly because the Roughriders came to town with the most impressive record any prairie machine has compiled.

Couch Billy Hughes announced Turville will start on the Hamilton rear-guard along with Glen Small, Danny Gardner and Bill Waymire. The eight-star will do the running and the eight-or-so will try to do the running—and if his ankle gives way this year the burden will be shifted over to Gardner taking a hand.

Gardner's main job, however, may be to duel Curt Schaefer, the former University of North Dakota Rider, with Turville. The former is a graduate of the University of Guelph and a good pitcher. Gardner is considered one of the best in the country. He is considered one of the very best.

The matter of field generalship remains undecided in both camps. Turville has either Eddie Sutton, the former Queen's footballer, or Ben Walker as quarterback. Both are likely to use two dispensers of high-class wares. Austin De Prata, speedy 100-pounder from Montana State University, and Midget Angie Michel, known "Little Napoleon" of the plains-

The Victorian Racing Club of Australia has excluded women from training horses as it considers that the training of horses is not within a woman's proper sphere.

In future all owner-trainers will be required to hold training permits. In the past women have been allowed to train without a license.

L. S. Mackinnon, the chairman of the Victorian Racing Club, said that his committee were unanimous in their opinion that women were not suited for training horses.

"I do not think that the part of racing is a job for women," he said. "Women should not be allowed to run around engaging jockeys and performing other duties that are essentially jobs for men. The ability of some of the women trainers is not questioned."

Among the women who will automatically become disqualified from training are Miss Dorothy Shatto, who trained the Grand National steeplechase winner; Mrs. F. Chapman, owner of Acceleration, who won the Australian steeplechase; Mrs. L. Costello and Mrs. L. Jones, two other well-known women trainers.

MILK BYLAW IS CRITICIZED

Criticism of the new Saanich milk by-law was voiced to the Saanich council yesterday evening by A. G. Lambrix, supported by E. Raper and J. W. Filmer, who asked that the Provincial Milk Act be put into effect.

Mr. Lambrix stated that distribution of milk which contained above 100,000 bacteria could only be prevented by establishing grade A dairies in the only class permitted to retail raw milk.

The council delayed proceeding with the milk bylaw to enable the dairymen to meet a special committee of the council and the medical health officer.

Risk For Farmers Is Lessened

Toronto, Dec. 2.—Farmers no longer need fear the charge of mad bull. The Ontario government has invented a contrivance to control enraged animals without risk to their handlers or damage to property.

The device consists of a headguard with blinkers above the bull's eyes. With the head in a normal position the blinkers do not interfere with the animal's vision, but when he lowers his head to charge the blinkers drop down and blind him.

Self-locking of the blinkers thus makes the animal helpless until someone opens the device.

How to Tell the Kind

Boys Like

Dorothy Dix

Says:
"Don't Listen;
Watch."

Don't Bother to Listen to the Boys When They Say They Exalt the Old-fashioned Girl Over the Modern One, Girls—Just Watch and See Which One He Dates, and Take Your Cue From That

THE WORLD'S most devoted wife has been discovered. This paragon of virtue is a California woman whose beauty was so great that it attracted the admiration of every one who saw her and caused men to follow her just for the joy of feasting their eyes on such puissance. This greatly annoyed her husband, and so that she might no longer find favor with other men, this heroic lady deliberately disfigured herself by smearing a strong acid on her good looks.

Certainly this is love's final test, for while many a woman has proved her affection for a man by offering up her good name on the altar of love, and many another woman has died for a man, sacrificing a peaches-and-cream complexion for one is something else yet again. And the pity of it is that like so many other sacrifices it was probably made in vain.

For, just as a sporting proposition, it is a hundred-to-one bet that when the woman lost her beauty she lost her husband also, and that when she ceased to be attractive to other men she likewise ceased to be attractive to him and that he will turn from her poor, unkind, scarred face to some doll who will cause men to rub her up with jealousy again.

For, as all wise women know, it is never safe to be guided by what a man says about women, but only to keep your eye on the ball and watch what he does. Experience and observation have taught them that when a man comes to dealing with women his theories and his performances are as wide apart as the poles. And this is why no woman ever makes a greater mistake than the one who tries to live up to a man's ideal.

Listen to any group of men talking about women and they will exalt the old-fashioned woman to the skies and bat the modern woman for everything she does and leaves undone. They will assure you in no uncertain terms that what they admire is the modest, domestic girl who knows how to cook and sew, and who makes her own dresses and hats, and who never uses anything but soap and water on her face, and who never smoked a cigarette or drank a cocktail or saw the inside of a night club in her life, and who regards lipstick and rouge as an artifice of the devil.

Oh, they are strong for the domestic woman! Especially after marriage. The model wife, according to them, is the woman whose whole life is bounded by the four walls of her home and who never has a thought or an interest after her wedding day except about her husband and children and the price of butcher's meat. She does not waste her husband's money on good clothes and beauty parlors. She does not belong to clubs or play a mean game of contract. She does not go off on trips or gad around. She is just as much a part of the household equipment as the gas range, and just as stationary.

But when a woman tries to understand man's ideal of the perfect woman, how does she come out? The answer is she does not come out at all. She is sunk. Who are the girls who have the most date? The girls who can bake bread like mothers used to make, or the girls who can dance the rhumba? Who are the girls that men like to go out with? The girls who look like Cinderella, or the ones who look like a daily hint from Paris? Is Goldilocks, whose gold came out of a bottle and whose curls were put in by art instead of nature, and whose complexion comes from the drug store, more likely to catch a husband than plain Maria, who is as homely as God made her? You tell me.

Every community is full of girls who fit men's ideal to a T. Girls who are good and modest and intelligent and domestic and wear flat-heeled shoes, and eschew cosmetics and who would make the best sort of wives and mothers, but who sit at home with mother and father in the evenings and never have a date because the men are all off playing around with the girls of whom they theoretically disapprove.

And women are equally foolish to try to be the kind of wives their husbands say they want, because nine times out of ten a man really does not want that kind of wife at all. Men make a fetish, for instance, of the self-sacrificing woman who subordinates her life entirely to her husband and children, who sits the back of the chicken and wears old clothes and stays at home and keeps the home fires burning while the balance of the family go off on a picnic. But did you ever know a doormat wife whose husband kept in love with her?

Never. The wives who keep their husbands' lovers are invariably the ones who demand things and who keep their men on their tiptoes buying them pretty frocks and taking them places, and who keep themselves young and attractive and well dressed.

Furthermore, to hear men tell it, you would think that their ideal woman was the one who emulated the small and who carried her house on her back all the time, yet there is no way in which a wife can lose her husband quicker than being house-bound and refusing to step out with him when he wants to go, and having no conversational range that reaches farther than the kitchen and the nursery.

It is the Alices-who-sit-by-the-fire who bore their husbands to death. Not the lively ladies who are always on the go and who are full of sprightly gossip.

All of which boils down into this tip for wives: Listen with your tongue in your cheek while your husband tells you about what a woman should be and do, but remember, the more other people admire you, the more he will.

Winning Electric Power

IV—CATCHING LIGHTING

One hundred and eighty years ago, on a stormy September night, two men were flying a kite. One was of middle age, the other was a young man, twenty-three years old.

The test proved that electricity and lightning were of the same nature. Franklin stored an electric charge from the lightning in the tin foil of his electric jar. He had proved beyond reasonable question a belief he had held before.

The test which Franklin made was dangerous. He might easily have been killed by the electric current from the lightning; but the care which he took to protect himself, along with good luck prevented a fatal end to the adventure.

Franklin did not rest after one worthless deed. His whole life was made up of fine deeds. He invented a lightning rod which he hoped would save buildings from being set afire by lightning. In the year 1760, he set up a rod above his house in Philadelphia. A storm came and lightning struck the rod, but there was no harm because the electric charge passed from the rod through a wire to the ground.

Readers interested in science will find some interesting facts in the leaflet, "Marvels of the Sky," which I shall be glad to send with my charge to anyone who mails me a stamped return envelope. Be sure to write plainly, and allow several days for the leaflet to reach you.

They were not foolish fellows. One was Benjamin Franklin; the other his son, William. They were flying the kite on a night like this!

They were not foolish fellows. One was Benjamin Franklin; the other his son, William. They were flying the kite on a night like this!

There was an iron point on the kite, and an effort was made to send it so high that it would be touched by lightning.

Minute followed minute, but there was no good fortune. Then came a sudden flash of lightning which struck the iron point. Down the wet cord ran a stream of power until it reached

Franklin held the wire point of an electric jar near the key.

If anyone else had been watching these men, he might have said:

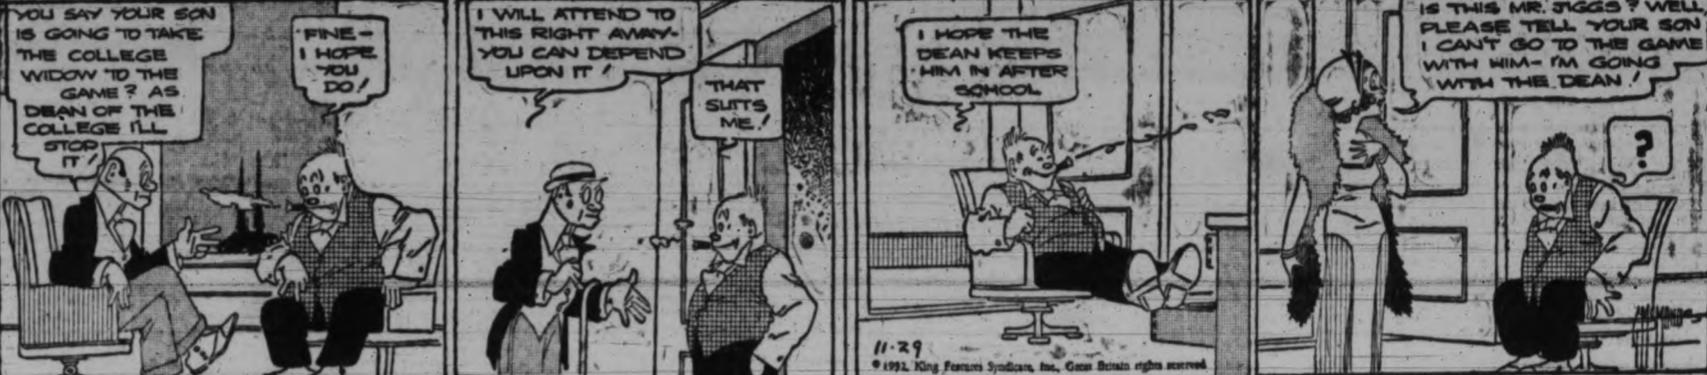

"What foolish fellows! Flying a kite on a night like this!"

PAYMENT POSTPONED

NO UNILATERAL CUTS IN NAVY

SKY-
ROADS

Associated Press
New York, Dec. 2—Declaring that Great Britain had gone farther than any other power in naval disarmament, Sir Bolton Byres-Monsell, First Lord of the British Admiralty, insisted during debate in the Commons that "future reductions will depend on their being accepted by every one—they will be no further unilateral reductions."

Sir Bolton's defense of the British naval policy was the chief feature of the debate on the British navy, said The New York Herald-Tribune in a special cable from London yesterday. One new point of interest that emerged was that, in the opinion of the admiralty, the personnel had been reduced to a dangerously low figure and ought to be increased.

While Zack and Louise started for the next port of the Falas and the British went upstream to cross the river, the Black Vulture poured his ship into the air to shoot down some bandits for all.

Here's where I settle a lot of old scores that ship had to me—and I'll make a torch out of it this time or else!

Gee, there comes Zack in the ship he went down to get—but how did he escape the falls? I think he went over them and was washed out.

By Jove—it isn't Zack! It's the Black Vulture—coming up for me—or trying to get away. Hell do neither—let's go, baby!

Niagara Met Rough Seas Coming Here

Docked This Morning After Stormy Passage From the Hawaiian Islands

Had Passengers, General Cargo and Christmas Mail For United Kingdom

After fighting stormy weather most of the way here from the Hawaiian Islands, the Canadian Australasian liner Niagara docked at Bithet piers this morning at 7:30 o'clock from Sydney, Auckland, Suva and Honolulu. She proceeded to Vancouver two hours later.

Capt. T. V. Hill, master of the ship, said he ran into rough seas as far out of Honolulu as he was forced to sail. The ship met big combers for several days. A whistling gale sweeping down from the north also held to hold the vessel back, the skipper said. Although not scheduled to arrive here until Friday mornings, the Niagara usually makes port on Tuesday evenings.

The standard and one of the small passenger lists of the season, there being only twenty-eight travelers in all classes. Of these eleven were in the first class, six in the tourist cabin and eleven in the third class. Several of the passengers disembarked here and proceeded to Seattle this afternoon by the S.S. Princess Alice.

FAIR CARGO

There was a fair amount of cargo aboard the Niagara on this voyage. Fifty tons were discharged here, the remainder including a little butter and frozen meat, proceeding to Vancouver. There was a large consignment of Christmas mails from Australia and New Zealand en route to the United Kingdom. United States mails were left at the port.

The Niagara met the S.S. Empress of Japan in Honolulu last Friday morning. She discharged a small amount of butter for transhipment to Orient ports by the Empress liner. Officers of the Niagara reported that the Japan met "storms" while en route across the ocean from Victoria, but had a splendid run down to Honolulu when once she was out of the gale.

How to End RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Out Poisons That Cause Torturing Stiffness, Swelling and Lameness

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

You cannot get rid of rheumatic aches and pains. Neuritis, lame knotted muscles and stiff swollen joints till you drive from your system the irritating poisons that cause rheumatism. External treatments only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new internal medicine that acts on the liver, kidneys and blood and expels through the natural channels of elimination, those dangerous poisons.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop—RU-MA eases pain first day—and so quickly and easily ends stiffening, crippling lameness and torturing pain that MacFarlane's and Vancouver Drug Stores urges every rheumatic sufferer to get a bottle to-day. They guarantee it.

When backing out from the Bithet piers at midnight yesterday evening on her way to Seattle, the S.S. Dorothy Alexander lost her anchor and chain at the end of the pier. Because of a stiff breeze, sweeping in from the Straits, the Dorothy had her anchor out as a precautionary measure, when the chain broke and the whole outfit was dropped into the deep water. It is expected the anchor and chain will be salvaged and returned to the Dorothy when she is here tomorrow evening on her return voyage to California ports.

LINER MAKES FAST VOYAGE

Ss. Dorothy Alexander Docked at 7 o'Clock Yesterday Evening From California

Because of fair winds and following seas the liner Dorothy Alexander was able to make an unusually fast voyage up the coast from California and she docked at the Bithet piers at 7 o'clock yesterday evening from Los Angeles and San Francisco. She remained here until midnight before proceeding to Seattle. Capt. Frank Landstrom, master of the ship, reported an unusual voyage.

For Victoria the Dorothy had 100 tons of general cargo, including forty-five tons of citrus fruits which will be shipped out to the Orient to-morrow on the Empress of Asia.

The cargo will be transshipped to Vancouver today.

Among the passengers on the Dorothy were Miss Clara Bell, A. G. Barker, Miss Molly Dickinson, Dr. Lillian Higley, Miss G. Pawett, Miss C. B. Gifford, F. L. Hart, B. V. Hole, A. W. McCellar, R. G. SWAM WITH MAILS IN TONGA SHARK WATER

ONE EXCEPTION

"Yes, there are plenty of sharks, but they never bothered us very much," said Mr. Ramsay when ship reporters sought to learn something of his exploits. "One boy was taken by sharks last year, but that is the first known case on the coast."

When the boat hove in sight each month, Mr. Ramsay and his native boys waded out in the surf and with the mail carried about by means of sticks swam out to the vessel, hove to in the offing.

With powerful breast-strokes Mr. Ramsay covered the half mile or so between the shore and ship, delivering his mail dry and intact. The return trip was made with mail for shore contained tightly sealed tins, propelled in similar fashion to a ball in water. Mr. Ramsay relates his experiences as a man swimming with hunchback, explaining that the mail had to be transferred from shore to ship and from ship to shore, and this method was the only one.

ISOLATED TWENTY YEARS

With the exception of four years he served in France with the First Australian and Battalion New Zealand Light Infantry, Mr. Ramsay has lived twenty years in the Tongas, and for eleven years he has held down the trading post for Morris and Hedstrom on the island of Niua Fou.

The natives have always been friendly, explaining that Captain Cook visited the group the Friendly Islands.

There are about 26,000 natives on the Tongan group and 1,200 on the island of Niua Fou, the only white men at the latter place being Mr. Ramsay, a Catholic priest and a rival trader.

The Island of Niua Fou was visited by a scientific expedition in 1930 to observe the solar eclipse.

Mr. Ramsay is a brother in Vancouver, A. G. Ramsay, proprietor of the International Wine Company, whom he plans to visit for a while. He later plans to go to Vista, Southern California, where he owns a ten-acre ranch on which he will cultivate avocados. He has no intention of going back to the South Seas.
